CENTRAL BANK OF THE FUTURE

2019 CONFERENCE PROGRAM

WELCOME,

We are thrilled to welcome you to the 2019 Central Bank of the Future Conference, hosted by the University of Michigan's Center on Finance, Law & Policy.

In partnership with the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation, our team has spent almost a year researching how central banks around the world can implement new policies and technologies which promote greater financial inclusion. As technology rapidly transforms financial services, our team strives to reimagine how central banks can capitalize on these advancements to more effectively serve our world's underbanked and underserved populations.

Over the next two days, we will hear distinguished policymakers, fintech executives, and experts from a wide range of disciplines explore the future of central banks and their role in expanding access to financial services. We look forward to a lively dialogue that advances financial inclusion and inspires leaders across the globe to better connect the world's most vulnerable populations to their country's financial systems.

To read the working papers we have released so far, please visit our website at financelawpolicy.umich.edu/central-bank-research. Join the conversation by following us on Twitter @MichiganCFLP or visit our LinkedIn page.

We appreciate your attendance, and we look forward to a productive discussion.

Sincerely,

Michael S. Barr

Greta Bull is the CEO of CGAP and a director at the World Bank Group. Ms. Bull has 18 years of experience in development finance, primarily focused on small and medium enterprise finance, microfinance, and digital financial services. She has worked with both financial services providers and policy makers in Latin America, Central and Eastern Europe, Sub-Saharan Africa, and South Asia. Her clients have included banks, microfinance institutions, mobile network operators, and FinTechs.

Greta Bull

Before joining CGAP, Ms. Bull was a manager for Financial Institutions Advisory Services at the International Finance Corporation. Other career highlights include serving as director of the Finance, Banking and Enterprise Division at DAI Europe and holding senior-level positions at the Eurasia Foundation.

Ms. Bull has a Master's degree in Public Policy from Harvard University's John F. Kennedy School of Government and an undergraduate degree in International Studies from the University of Washington.

F. Christopher Calabia is Senior Advisor for Supervisory & Regulatory Policy and a Senior Program Officer at the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation. Chris leads the Foundation's global efforts to promote a regulatory framework that enables digital financial inclusion. He also oversees grants that may help central banks and supervisors to promote financial inclusion, stability, integrity, and consumer protection in emerging and developing market economies.

Chris joined the Foundation after a career as a banking supervisor at the Federal Reserve Bank of New York. Most recently, Chris was Senior Vice President and head of the Regional, Community, and Foreign Institutions Supervision and Consumer Compliance Function, a division that regulates over 200 U.S. and foreign banking organizations. He previously served as the senior supervisor for one of the largest U.S. systemically important financial institutions from 2009-2011; he then served as deputy head of the function that supervises global systemically important firms from 2011-2013.

F. Christopher Calabia

Externally, Chris co-led the International Monetary Fund's 2016 evaluation of the United Kingdom's approach to banking supervision. Previously, he was seconded to the Secretariat of the Basel Committee on Banking Supervision in Switzerland from 2003-05, where he assisted in the revision of the global capital framework for banks.

Jennifer Calvery is a Group General Manager and the Global Head of Financial Crime Threat Mitigation at HSBC in London. In this role, she runs a unified, global capability that leverages analytics and technology to identify, analyse and investigate financial crime risks to the HSBC Group in more than 60 countries.

Jennifer previously served as the Director of the Financial Crime Enforcement Network (FinCEN), the financial intelligence unit and anti-money laundering regulatory agency for the U.S. Government, which is part of the U.S. Department of the Treasury. As FinCEN Director, Jennifer strengthened the organizational design of the function to break down information silos and make the bureau more nimble given the dynamism of the financial services industry; she exercised FinCEN's use of regulatory and enforcement authorities to protect the U.S. financial system from significant money laundering threats and AML program inadequacies; and she introduced the first global regulatory AML framework defining the obligations of virtual currency service providers.

Jennifer Calvery

Prior to FinCEN, Jennifer spent 15 years at the U.S. Department of Justice (Justice) combating money laundering, corruption, fraud and organized crime in a variety of executive and staff roles. As Chief of the Asset Forfeiture and Money Laundering Section, she was responsible for enforcement actions brought against several large global financial institutions.

Leonardo Gambacorta is the Head of the Innovation and the Digital Economy unit at the BIS.

Before taking up his current position, Leonardo was Research Adviser (2014–2018) and Head of Monetary Policy (2010–12) in the Monetary and Economic Department. He was also Head of the Money and Credit Unit (2007–09) and Head of the Banking Sector Unit (2004–06) of the Research Department of the Bank of Italy. He was a visiting scholar at the National Bureau of Economic Research (2002–03).

He holds an MSc in Economics from the University of Warwick and a PhD in Economics from the University of Pavia. His main interests include the monetary transmission mechanisms, the effectiveness of macroprudential policies on systemic risk, and the effects of technological innovation on financial intermediation. He is a research fellow of the Centre for Economic Policy Research.

Lobna Helal is Deputy Governor of the Central Bank of Egypt. She started her career in banking. She joined the Central Bank of Egypt in 2004. In 2011, she became the first female in the Bank's history to assume the position of Deputy Governor responsible for Monetary Stability.

In March 2013, Mrs. Helal was appointed as the Chairman and Managing Director of the Egyptian Mortgage Refinance Company (EMRC). In June 2015, she was elected as the first Head of the Egyptian Mortgage Finance Union.

As the Deputy Governor of the Central Bank of Egypt, Mrs. Helal is responsible for Monetary Stability, supervising Monetary Policy, Reserve Management & Markets, External Relations, Research, Information Technology, Banking Operation and Banking Reform.

In 2016, under the leadership of Mr. Tarek Amer Governor of the Central Bank of Egypt, Mrs. Helal spearheaded the efforts of constructing the comprehensive, ambitious Homegrown Economic Reform program which was endorsed by the IMF.

Mrs. Helal also holds the position of the Vice Chair of the Gender and Women Financial Inclusion Committee and represents the Central Bank of Egypt in its capacity as Vice Chair of the Board of Directors at the Alliance for Financial Inclusion (AFI). Mrs. Helal holds a Master of Economics from the American University in Cairo.

Aaron Klein is a fellow in Economic Studies at the Brookings Institution, where he also serves as policy director of the Center on Regulation and Markets. He focuses on financial regulation and technology, payments, macroeconomics, and infrastructure finance and policy. His work on the costs of financial regulation led to a greater focus on anti-money laundering and cannabis banking.

Previously, Klein directed the Bipartisan Policy Center's Financial Regulatory Reform Initiative and helped the BPC launch its Executive Council on Infrastructure.

Before that, Klein served as Deputy Assistant Secretary for Economic Policy at the U.S. Treasury Department from 2009-2012. At Treasury he worked on financial regulatory reform, housing finance reform, transportation and infrastructure policy, and Native American issues.

Prior to his appointment at Treasury, he served as Chief Economist of the Senate Banking, Housing and Urban Affairs Committee for Chairmen Chris Dodd (D-CT) and Paul Sarbanes (D-MD). While working in the Senate Klein played a key role in a series of major legislation including, the Economic Emergency Stabilization Act of 2008 (better known as TARP), the Housing and Economic Recovery Act of 2008, the SAFETEA Act of 2005, the Check Truncation Act of 2003, the Terrorism Risk Insurance Act of 2002, and the Sarbanes-Oxley Act of 2002.
