Moot court and speakers address contemporary issues

The 1986 Henry M. Campbell Moot Court

This year's Campbell Competition focused on the problem of obtaining compensation for persons who develop cancer from consuming a diet soft drink containing artificial sweetener. Andrew Klevorn and Martin Harris were awarded first place for oral argument, while the team of Thomas Bean and H. Kevin Haight received first place for the best brief. Finalists and judges shown above are (back row, left to right): Andrew Klevorn, Martin Harris, Creighton Magid, Paul Seyferth, H. Kevin Haight, Thomas Bean, David Medow; (front row, left to right): Dean Terrance Sandalow, Hon. Ruth Bader Ginsberg, Circuit Judge, U.S. Court of Appeals, D. C. Circuit; Hon. Wilfred Feinberg, Circuit Judge, U.S. Court of Appeals, 2nd Circuit; Hon. Robert Bork, Circuit Judge, U.S. Court of Appeals, D.C. Circuit; Professor James J. White.

T. Boone Pickens, chief executive officer of Mesa Oil Co., spoke on the accountability of management and the restructuring of corporate America.

"Religious Convictions and Lawmaking" was the subject of the 1986 Thomas M. Cooley lectures, given this year by R. Kent Greenawalt, the Cardozo Professor of Jurisprudence at Columbia University School of Law and former deputy solicitor general.

The Hon. Harry T. Edwards, U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia (J.D. '65) spoke on "Alternative Dispute Resolution: the Newest Game in Town." Edwards warned against losing sight of the purpose of ADR and assuming that the mere establishment of ADR mechanisms is the end goal of the movement instead of a means to achieve greater justice.
