NOTES

ATOMIC ENERGY

FEAR, WAR AND THE BOMB. By Patrick Maynard S. Blackett—Recipient of 1948 Nobel Prize for physics; leader in early atomic research, and Professor of Physics at Manchester University. N.Y.: McGraw-Hill. 1948-49. Pp. 251. $3.50. A study indicating that the world today has a complete misconception of the real importance of the atom bomb—misconceptions that are largely responsible for the stalemate between the United States and Russia. Professor Blackett argues that the Baruch Plan and Gromyko's counter proposal do not offer realistic solution for international control and development of atomic energy.
