CAMPBELL COMPETITION:

Terrence L. Croft, of St. Louis, Missouri, and Dennis J. Slater, of Ann Arbor, are the winners in the 1964 Henry M. Campbell competition. This was the result handed down Monday by the five man court headed by U.S. Supreme Court Justice Byron White. John E. Gates, of Salt Lake City, Utah, and John W. McCullough, of Oklahoma City, Okla., were runners-up. The problem concerned the legitimacy, under the anti-trust laws, of the merger of two newspapers in a small Texas town. The winners received a prize of $150.00 each; the runners-up, $100.00 each.

At the Case Club Banquet, on Monday night, the Case Club Judges for next year were also announced. Chief Judge is Terrence Croft; Campbell Competition Supervisor is John Gates. The other judges are Charles Barr, Barbara Croft, David Dodge, Albert Fowerbough, Sheila Gallagher, David Goelzer, Ethan Jacobs, Shirley Johnson, John McCollough, Peter Patterson, Frank Pollock, Louis Potter, Dennis Slater, Karen Swift, Timothy Wittlinger and Fred Woodworth.

LAW SCHOOL ELECTS BOARD OF DIRECTORS FOR NEXT YEAR:

Students went to the polls Wednesday and made their selection for the Board of Directors for next year. The new President is Larry Miller; vice-President, Joe McInahon; Secretary, Jay Franz; Treasurer, David Ebershoff; and member to the Board of Governors, William Herman. The seven persons elected to membership on the Board are Kevin Beattie, Sheila Gallagher, Ted Heimer, Michael Lynch, Michael Mathews, Kenneth Spangler, and John Unger.

PROFESSOR OPPENHEIM HONORED:

Seniors, faculty members and special guests gathered Sunday night for a testimonial dinner in honor of Professor S. Chesterfield Oppenheim, at the Inn American. Dan Elliott was Toastmaster. Key speakers were Professor Roy L. Steinheimer, William Wickeins, Judge Creighton Coleman and Mr. William Pogue of Cleveland. Jim Zirin and "Brick" Howe also provided some insight into the history of anti-trust laws, by means of a short skit.

Professor Oppenheim first taught at the law school in 1926 and 1927, when he was also research assistant to the Dean. Before that, he was an instructor of Economics for five years. In 1927, he joined the faculty at the George Washington University School of law; a position he held for twenty-five years. He also served as the acting dean at George Washington for a term in 1948 and as an Executive Officer, 1946-1950. For four years (1942-1946) he was faculty Editor-in-Chief of the George Washington Law Review. He has been a professor here at Michigan since 1952. Prof. Oppenheim's degrees include an A.B. (1918) and an A.M. (1920) fromolumbia; a J.D. (1925) and S.J.D. (1929) from the Law School here. He is the author of a number of volumes dealing with anti-trust law, unfair trade practice and trade regulation. He is an Editor in the Trade Regulation Series; and was co-chairman of the Attorney-General's National Committee to Study the Anti-Trust Laws, from 1953 to 1955. He is currently on leave from the law school.

HONORS BANQUET SEE 119 AWARDED:

Honors awards were presented to 119 Law Students at the annual Honors Day banquet on March 11. Four seniors received the Henry M. Bates Memorial Scholarship, awarded annually for scholarship, personality, character, outside interests and promise of a distinguished career. They are F. Bruce Kulp, Jr.; Daniel W. Vittum, Jr.; Martin B. Dickinson, Jr.; and John P. Eppel. The Barristers Award went to Edgar N. Harland, Jr.; the Clarence M. Burton Memorial Scholarships to F. Bruce Kulp, Jr., Nancy L. Michelmore, and Stanley P. Wagner, Jr.; the Class of 1908 Memorial Scholarship to Daniel W. Vittum, Jr.; and the Howard B. Coblenz Prize to Philip Sotiroff. The Jerome S. Freud Memorial Scholarship went to Charles K. Dayton; the Jason L. Honigman Award to Thomas W. Van Dyke; the Abram W. Sempliner Memorial Award to David H. Ebel. There were many additional awards for outstanding work in particular courses or areas of law.

The Order of the Coif was also announced. Members are: Alexander E. Bennett, Francis X. Beytagh, Jr., John E. Burke, Timothy K. Carroll, Richard J. DeLamielleure, Martin B. Dickinson, Jr., Thomas G. Digman, Jr., Daniel R. Elliott, Jr., John P. Eppel, John A. Everhardus, Fred J. Fechheimer, Alvin C. Frisbie, III, Richard F. Gerber,
The fortyeth annual Crease Ball will be held this year on April 11, from 9:00-12:30, at the Lawyers Club. The name Crease Ball evolved from an historic event in the annals of the Barristers of the Inner Temple in nineteenth century England. It was felt in 1817, by King George IV, in a gesture, theretofore quite uncharacteristic of the boorish, unfriendly King, that he should honor the leading men of the law in his realm. He felt that only a grandiose ball at Buckingham would be fitting tribute to the men whose logic he held in such high esteem. In that year and in each year thereafter, until his death, he conducted the Crease Ball at Buckingham. The Crease Ball was named such in a rare moment of light heartedness on the part of King George, for he had noticed the neat crease in the trousers of the always splendidly dressed Barristers. It has been, and continues to be, in this tradition of sartorial excellence and of the gesture of good fellowship evinced by George that the ball is given each year in the Law School by the modern Barristers.

The Lawyers Club recently became basketball and swimming champs of the professional fraternity intramural league. In the basketball playoffs, the team, under the leadership of John Tully, beat out Nu Sigma Nu (a medical fraternity) to take the crown. In the all-league swim meet, Buck Robinson's team similarly left Nu Sigma Nu in second place.

Due to complications it has been necessary to table the Senior Recognition Day plans. However, such a program is still being considered for next year.

The judiciary of the United States is the subtle corp of sappers and miners constantly working under ground to undermine the foundation of our confederated fabric.

In some instances, homemade pies are superior, wills never.

"Welcome home, Son... and a Happy Easter"