NEW YORK TIMES LEGAL WRITER HERE: Anthony Lewis, the New York Times correspondent with the Supreme Court, will be in residence at the Lawyers Club on April 3 and 4. Wednesday and Thursday. He comes with good credentials, as this sample from Who’s Who reveals: graduated from Harvard in 1946, worked on the Review of the Week section of the Sunday Times for a number of years before joining the Times Washington Bureau. Since that time, he has received the Pulitzer Prize and the Heywood Broun Award for stories on the federal loyalty-security program and was named a Nieman Fellow at Harvard, spending the entire 1956-57 school year at the Law School.

The Speakers Committee, with assistance from the Law School, has obligated to substantial amount of money in order to get Mr. Lewis here. Consequently, it is hoped everyone will feel free to discuss any and all subjects relating to the Supreme Court during his stay. He will be speaking on both Wednesday and Thursday evenings on topics to be announced later. After his talks and during the period of his stay he will remain ready to discuss such things as the recent additions of Justice Harlan and Goldberg to the Supreme Court, how far to present liberal trend may go, the outlawing of “feather-bedding” in the railroad industry, as well as the various ramifications of Baker v. Carr (reapportionment), the overruling of Betts v. Brady (indigent’s right to counsel), and prayer in the class room.

Call Bill Rutherford (662-7707) for reservations to eat with Mr. Lewis either Wednesday or Thursday evening or to reserve a time to speak with Mr. Lewis during the day.

CAMPBELL COMPETITION FINALS: Brashares, Dayton, Kerwin and Wickens are putting the finishing touches on their briefs for the final round of Campbell Competition to be held Wednesday, April 3, at 2:15 P.M. in Room 100 of Hutchins Hall. In addition to the Henry N. Campbell Prize, the winning team will be awarded $300.

Freshmen are reminded to pick up their free banquet tickets in the Case Club office between 2:00 - 4:30. No one will be admitted to the banquet without a ticket.

INTERNATIONAL LAW SOCIETY TO MEET: Next Thursday at 4:30 the International Law Society will meet, for the second time, in Room 120. The program will be a panel discussion on European Legal Education. Chaired by Prof. Whitmore Gray, who has studied extensively in Europe, the panel will include Hans Bagner of Sweden, Marlene Bas Backer of the Netherlands, Hermann Adolf Kunisch of Germany, and Ivo Van Bael of Belgium. The general educational system of each country will be discussed, as well as the special problems that confront Americans studying in Europe. There will be an opportunity to ask questions.

SIGN UP AGAIN

Unfortunately the sign-up sheets for senior suppers at Dean Smith's have been accidentally thrown out. Seniors are urged to sign up again.

F.P.C. SPEAKER: The Honorable Charles R. Ross, a commissioner of the Federal Power Commission, will be in the Lawyers Club lounge on this coming Monday, March 25 at 6:30. Ross is a graduate of Michigan and practiced law in Vermont and served on the Vermont Public Service Commission before taking his present high post in Washington. He will be expecting questions relating to practice before the Federal Power Commission, but may not get a chance to answer many on that subject because he will be discussing some aspect of "Federal Power vs. Private Power."

Call Bill Rutherford (662-7707) if you would like to eat with Mr. Ross Monday evening.

THE MICHIGAN RAW REVIEW, "published surreptitiously under the disfavor of the Law School," announces a startling new feature for this year: a Personalities Column. The column will include your(1) gripes about the professors,(2) love letters, messages, (3) legal and illegal news, (4) etc. Your signature will be included if desired. The cost? A mere buck a line. (Submit your lines by Monday, March 25, to "oom E-21, Law Club.) The Raw Review comes out April 27 at the Crease Ball with a mammoth circulation of 1000 copies.

MISCELLANEOUS: Hans Bagner's wicked paddle has brought the Lawyers Club to the campus finals in ping-pong. The big play-off is to take place in the Union at 7:00 P.M. Monday...The use of cigarettes in the United States by persons 15 years and over has increased from 16 per year per person in 1880 to 3,700 or 185 packs, in 1958, and this is an average for the total population over 15, which includes those who do not smoke...
